Chandrakant Pithawa, the retired director of the Electronics and instrumentation group of BARC (Bhabha Atomic Research Centre) in Mumbai is one of the most distinguished scientists in the country. He is recognized as the foremost expert on Nuclear instrumentation employed in the Nuclear power plants of the country.

He even veered away from Nuclear instrumentation for a short while to take part in an interesting project. He was part of the Nirbhaya device project that came up with an innovative GPS streaming device that sends out a distress signal. Girls who carry it can hook it up to their mobile devices via bluetooth and in times of distress, just push the button on it to send a distress call. This device also throws up a GPS signal to help locate the girl in distress.

Post retirement, he was given the Raja Ramanna Fellowship for BARC & ECIL. This is a high responsibility fellowship which was established with the sole purpose of utilizing the services of the country's leading researchers.

Action Taken on Conference” Intelligent Computing and Communications “
Held from 18-11-2022 to 19-11-2022

Actions Taken: After conducting an in-depth analysis of the feedback received for our International conference, we found that the assignments and overall rating were slightly below our expectations. To address this concern and ensure a more enriching learning experience for our participants, we have decided to take decisive actions. Moving forward, we will be transitioning the FDP to an offline mode. This change aims to foster better engagement and interaction among participants, providing them with a more conducive environment for learning and collaboration. Additionally, we will be incorporating valuable insights from the feedback into the course content and structure, tailoring it to meet the specific needs and preferences of our participants. By implementing these actions, we are confident that the FDP will witness significant improvements, enabling us to better support the professional growth and development of our faculty members. We are excited about this positive change and look forward to the enhanced outcomes it will bring.
